Description

MADRE is an international women's human rights organization. We partner with community-based women's groups worldwide facing war and disaster – our sister organizations.

Our mission is to advance women's human rights by meeting urgent needs in communities and building lasting solutions to the crises women face.

Our history is rooted in progressive movements for peace, justice and women's human rights.

Our Vision

MADRE works for a world where all people enjoy the fullest range of individual and collective human rights. A world where resources are shared equitably and sustainably. A world where women participate effectively in all aspects of society. And a world where people have a meaningful say in policies that affect their lives.

We bring our vision to life with an understanding of the inter-relationships between the issues we address. And we are committed to working in partnership with women at the local, regional and international levels who share our goals.

To advance social justice, women must be equipped to both meet urgent needs in their communities and advocate for human rights.

Our partners are grassroots women leaders who know best what threats their communities face and what women and girls need to thrive. When women work together, they create solutions. They build schools and clinics, set up shelters and counseling centers, deliver aid and more. Through this vital work, women build new skills and step up as leaders valued in their communities. What's more, they gain new standing to demand policies that protect women's rights.

How We Work

MADRE strengthens grassroots women's organizations in war, disaster and their aftermath. We support our partners to meet urgent needs and to build communities that are safer and healthier for women and families. And we train and accompany our partners to advocate for lasting change.
