Description

CCAD teaches undergraduate and graduate students in the midst of a thriving artistic community in Columbus, Ohio.

Founded in 1879, CCAD is one of the oldest private, nonprofit art and design colleges in the United States, and in 2019, the college is celebrating 140 years of creative excellence.

CCAD offers 12 BFA programs and two master's programs in art and design that produce graduates equipped to shape culture and business at the highest level.

What we do (mission)

CCAD fosters a community that educates diverse students so they can unleash their creative power to shape culture and commerce

Who we strive to be (vision)

CCAD will be recognized as a top-tier college of art and design, a cultural leader, and the engine of Columbus' creative economy. CCAD will have a global reputation for delivering an innovative and relevant creative educational experience of value to its students, alumni, and society.

Diversity

CCAD believes diversity is necessary for art to evolve. Here's a few numbers to put our diverse community of students and faculty in perspective:

Caucasian students: 64%

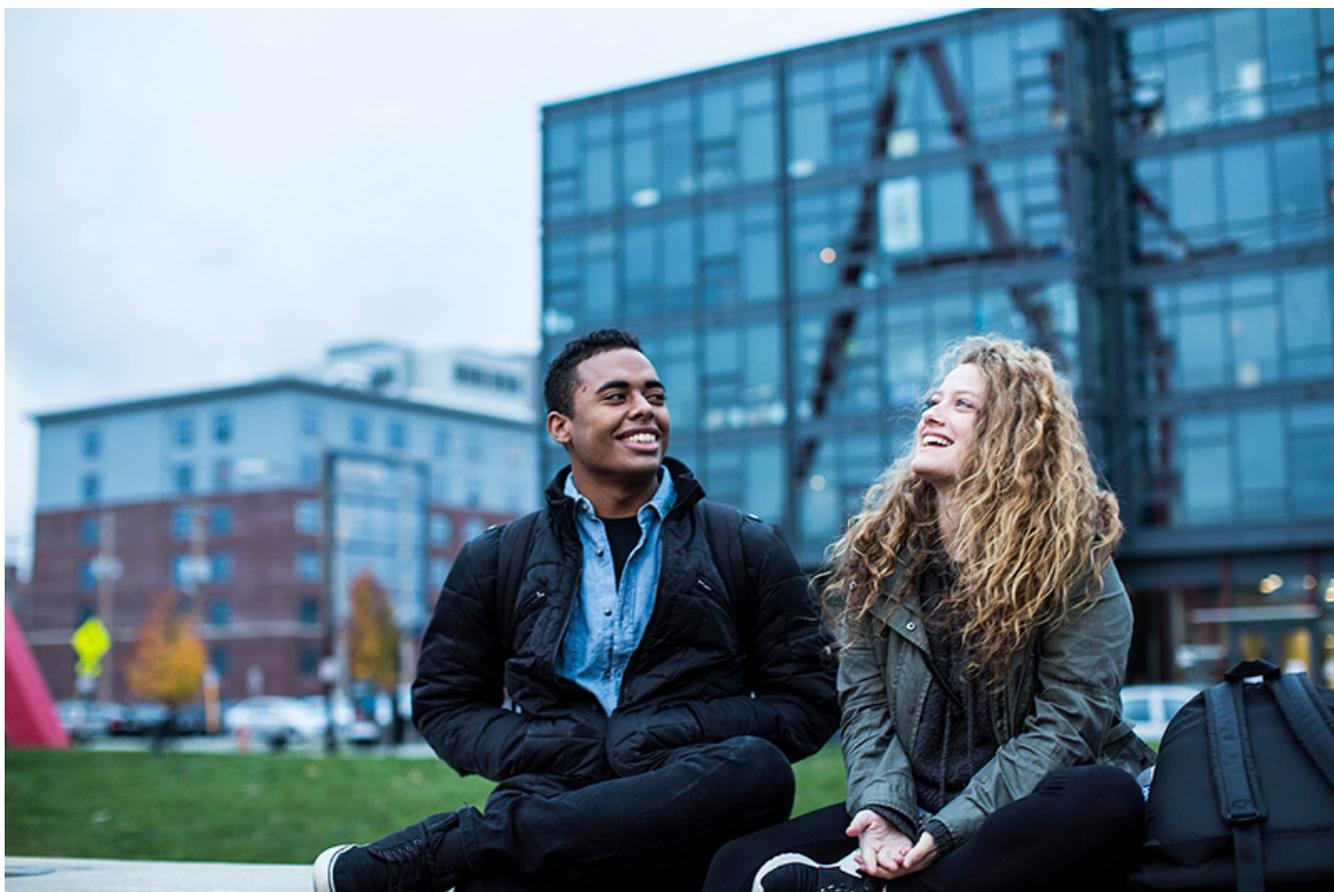

Minority students: 30%

Female students: 68%

Male students: 32%

Domestic students: 92% (from 37 states)

International students: 7% (from 22 countries)

CCAD is a place for people like you.

People who think differently. People who refuse to stay within a box, stereotype, line, or any other boundary that restricts self-expression. Diversity moves art forward. Diversity makes our connected community even stronger.
