Description

Who are we? We are the flagship teacher education program in South Carolina and the region. We are transforming teacher education through innovative clinical practice in partnership with schools and community organizations. We are making a difference! Just watch and listen here.

What do we offer? We also offer exceptional programs in Athletic Training, Exercise Science, Human Development and Family Studies, and Sport Management through courses and internships relevant to today's workplaces. We offer dynamic graduate programs designed to meet 21st century challenges.

Why come here? Easy answer — you will engage in clinical activities that will clearly connect research to professional practice and participate in a learning community committed to your academic success and professional future. Additionally, The Richard W. Riley College of Education and degree programs within the college are accredited or nationally recognized.
Winthrop University's student body totals more than 6,000 and is composed of individuals from various ethnic and cultural backgrounds who make up approximately 38% of the university's population:

- 29.35% Black/African American
- 3.95% International
- 4.88% Latino/Hispanic
- 1.41% Asian
- 0.31% American Indian

In an effort to promote cultural diversity, the Office of Diversity & Student Engagement provides students, faculty members, and staff with several avenues through which they can enhance their knowledge about other cultures and the diversity issues that individuals belonging to such cultures face in today's society. We sponsor a number of multicultural clubs and organizations as well as special events throughout the school-year that bring light to such topics.
