The University of Wisconsin-Extension works in partnership with 26 UW System campuses, 72 Wisconsin counties, three tribal governments, and other public and private organizations to fulfill its public service mission. This is the "Wisconsin Idea" - extending the university's boundaries to the corners of the state.

Through statewide outreach networks, UW-Extension also connects university research to the specific needs and interests of residents and communities. Educators, working on campuses and in communities, use up-to-date research and careful analysis to help Wisconsin people address economic, social and environmental issues.

University of Wisconsin-Extension provides statewide access to university resources and research so the people of Wisconsin can learn, grow and succeed at all stages of life. UW-Extension carries out this tradition of the Wisconsin Idea - extending the boundaries of the university to the boundaries of the state - through its four divisions of continuing education, cooperative extension, entrepreneurship and economic development broadcast and media innovations. University of Wisconsin-Extension is on all 26 UW campuses through continuing education programs and small business development centers. We are also in each of the 72 counties at our County Offices.
